Insight

Programs in the Department of Languages and Cultures are designed to help students develop the linguistic and cultural knowledge and skills necessary to contribute to a multilingual, international society.

Majoring in a language means studying the language and culture of the people and places where the language is spoken. Knowledge of a foreign language deepens understanding of one’s own language and culture and contributes toward a greater appreciation of other cultures. Area studies majors further attain an interdisciplinary perspective on a diverse region of the world.

Experience

Language instruction is oriented toward practical usage. In addition to Spanish for both non-natives and heritage speakers, LANC offers Spanish classes for professional applications. Students also have opportunities to gain mentored, hands-on language teaching experiences. Extracurricular offerings include Spanish, French, German, and Japanese Fusion Clubs that host a variety of events each year, weekly language conversation hours, and academic honor societies.

Many LANC students opt to spend part of their time as a student at California State University, Chico studying abroad. A multitude of opportunities exist—there is quite literally a program to fit every student’s needs. Whether you choose to spend a year abroad through one of the California State University International Programs, or a year, semester, or summer through AIFS, USAC, direct exchange, or via a faculty-led program abroad in one of dozens of countries, you will be able to apply that academic work toward a major or minor in languages and/or area studies, as well as toward another major or minor and/or General Education and other graduation requirements. A program advisor in LANC or a study abroad advisor can help you choose the program that is right for you.

Outlook

Intercultural competence opens the door to many exciting careers. Proficiency in a world language and/or a degree in area studies leads to careers in international business, marketing, foreign intelligence and diplomacy, travel and tourism, entertainment, media and public relations, communications, translation/interpretation, teaching, and many service professions, to name but a few. Students specifically interested in careers in language education in the U.S. or abroad can enhance their employment potential by completing the MA in language teaching.

At the same time, in today’s globalized world, a language and/or area studies major enhances a candidate’s attractiveness to employers in most career fields. Proficiency in another language, but also the cultural awareness and general communication skills that are attained as part of the major are highly valued by employers.

Education-Second Language

EDSL 605 Technology in Second/Foreign Language Teaching and Learning 3 Units
Typically Offered: Spring only
This graduate seminar introduces future language teachers to the role and use of technology in learning and teaching a second/foreign language. Through reading, interactive discussions, and individual and group projects, students in this course explore current theories, empirical research and pedagogical applications of technology in second language acquisition (SLA), with a focus on computer-assisted language learning (CALL). In particular, we explore how technology can be used to provide and increase multimodal input in foreign language teaching; digital storytelling; telecommunication and telecollaboration projects; the multiliteracies approach and digital literacy; digital games for developing foreign language learners’ intercultural competence and sociopragmatic awareness; technology for vocabulary instruction; mobile language learning; technology and task-based language learning; and issues relating to inclusive language education and technology. 3 hours lecture. (022019)
Grade Basis: Graduate Graded
Repeatability: You may take this course for a maximum of 3 units

EDSL 610 Second/Foreign Language Teaching Methodology for Beginning Learners 3 Units
Typically Offered: Fall only
Survey of innovative approaches to foreign/second language teaching. An overview of theory and practice in the field, highlighting methods for the development of comprehension and communication skills. Humanistic techniques, teaching the cultural context of language use, and language testing are also included. 3 hours seminar. (002891)
Grade Basis: Graduate Graded
Repeatability: You may take this course for a maximum of 3 units
Course Attributes: Graduate Division

EDSL 620 Second/Foreign Language Teaching Methodology for Intermediate Learners 3 Units
Typically Offered: Spring only
This seminar builds upon concepts and practices taught in EDSL 610. The course introduces future teachers to pedagogical approaches and research focused on language instruction for intermediate learners and heritage language speakers. Specifically, we focus upon: Teaching intermediate/advanced grammar and vocabulary; feedback and error correction through extended discourse; increasing language output in the classroom; assessing reading, writing, listening, and speaking; test design and scoring as well as test evaluation; planning teaching units and developing a syllabus; evaluation of textbooks; teaching heritage language speakers; serving second language and heritage language learners in the same classroom, and principles of immersion education. 3 hours lecture. (021962)
